Keeping Watch – History of the Navy League 1895-2015

Copyright 2016. Author Malcolm Longstaff

Malcolm Longstaff has been an active member of the NSW Division of the Navy League of Australia since 1970. His book, recently published by the League, traces the history of its organisation from the formation of its parent, the Navy League of Great Britain, in 1895. Formed as a result of growing public concern about the increasing naval strength of continental European powers and Japan, the League opened its first Australian Branch in Launceston, Tasmania, in 1900. Growth of the League in Australia was slow until after the early success of the RAN in World War I but, ultimately, the League was represented in all states of Australia. In 1920 it began forming units of sea cadets, known as the Navy League Sea Cadet Corps.

280 pages including index, Keeping Watch has over 70 illustrations and is available as a hardback or soft-cover book. It can be ordered from the NSW Division of the Navy League of Australia using the form on the website below. Payment can be made by cheque or by bank transfer.

Canada picks BAE's Type 26 frigate for its Canadian Surface Combatants

The Canadian government and Irving Shipbuilding Inc. have selected the BAE Systems' Type 26 frigate design for the Royal Canadian Navy's future Canadian Surface Combatants.

In an announcement on Friday, the government said it would now enter a "due diligence process" with Lockheed Martin Canada Inc. as prime contractor before awarding the final design and construction contract.

The process will include negotiations with the company on intellectual property rights, an assessment of combat systems performance and an assessment of the company's financial capability to deliver the project.

Lockheed Martin is at the helm of Canada's Combat Ship Team which includes BAE Systems with the Type 26 Global Combat Ship and high-tech platforms from CAE, MDA, L3 Technologies, and Ultra Electronics.

Should the due diligence process be successful, Canada will become the third country to acquire the Type 26 design, joining the UK and Australia.

A contract award is expected this winter, with construction beginning in the early 2020s. A total of 15 Canadian Surface Combatants will be built to replace Canada's Iroquois-class destroyers and Halifax-class frigates.

The CSC acquisition project is expected to cost between CA$55 billion and 60 billion.

The government also noted that, should the due diligence process with the preferred bidder be unsuccessful, the next highest ranked compliant bidder will become the preferred bidder.

The other two bidders were the Alion Science and Technology-led team with a proposal based on the De Zeven Provinciën Air Defence and Command frigate which is in service with the Dutch Navy, and Spain's Navantia offering its F-105 frigate design in partnership with Saab and CEA Technologies.

French Naval Group and Italian Fincantieri offered to build 15 frigates based on the FREMM design for a fixed price of $30 billion outside the tendering process in December 2017. Compared to current project cost estimates which sit at over $60 billion, the Fincantieri-Naval Group bid offered considerable savings but the government rejected it arguing that such a move would break faith with other bidders on the project.

Remembrance Day

The Remembrance Day service on Sunday 11 November 2018 at the Shrine of Remembrance was to honour service and sacrifice, past and present and the Centenary of ANZAC. The service this year attracted 10,000 people. The gardens were beautiful and the 5000 knitted poppies articulating The Ode were very special. The sky was a magnificent blue and the clouds looked like transparent feathers.

We were delighted to see a strong representation from HMAS Cerberus - including Commodore Yorke - and the Navy band. The Shrine Guards formed the Catafalque Party.

The MC, Peter Meehan OAM, did a fantastic job of providing background information on the Service.

The Premier, Leader of the Opposition, the Governor of Victoria, and a representative from the Commonwealth of Australia were all present.

Aircraft from the RAAF Museum flew over at 11am. The sound of The Last Post and the boom of the 105mm gun brought people to tears.

The Youth Choir Exaudi performed a medley of music, and they were magnificent. In Flanders Fields and For the Fallen were beautifully read. We were so glad that we could experience this very moving service.

Below are photos of the venue and the 11am service.

HMAS Warramunga Melbourne visit

By Tim Ryan

The Anzac class frigate HMAS Warramunga made a welcome return visit back home to Melbourne recently and on Saturday 20 October several of our members enjoyed a conducted tour of this powerful and versatile RAN unit.

Based upon the German Meko 200 frigate design Warramunga was the third of eight vessels built at the Tenix Defence Systems shipyard at Williamstown and was laid down on 26 July 1997. The ship was assembled from six hull modules and six superstructure modules with the superstructure modules fabricated in New Zealand at Whangarei with the hull modules being built at both Williamstown and Newcastle. Warramunga was launched on 23 May 1998 and commissioned into the RAN on 31 March 2001.

The Anzac class frigates were designed as long-range frigate units capable of air defence, surface and undersea warfare, surveillance, reconnaissance and interdiction. The ships are 118 metres in length overall with a beam of 14.8 metres (49 ft), and a full load draft of 4.35 metres. A Combined Diesel or Gas (CODOG) propulsion machinery layout has been installed, with a single, 30,172-horsepower (22,499 kW) General Electric LM2500-30 gas turbine and two 8,840-horsepower (6,590 kW) MTU 12V1163 TB83 diesel engines driving the ship's two controllable pitch propellers with a maximum speed of 27 knots with a range of over 6,000 nautical miles.

The combat capabilities of the class have been progressively updated since construction including the Anti-Ship Missile Defence (ASMD) upgrade program which provides an enhanced sensor and weapons systems capability including a new Australian designed Phased Array Radar technology system.

Warramunga and her sister ships are fitted with an advanced package of air and surface surveillance radars including omni-directional hull mounted sonar and electronic support systems that interface with the state-of-the-art 9LV453 Mk3E combat data system.

Main armament comprises one five inch (127 mm) gun capable of firing 20 rounds per minute, ship launched Mk 46 torpedoes and a Mk 41 vertical launch system for the Evolved Sea Sparrow point defence missile. The Anzac class also has eight anti-ship/land attack canister launched harpoon missiles and a vertical launch system for the Evolved Sea Sparrow Missile. Other defence systems include the Nulka active missile decoy system, off board chaff and a torpedo countermeasures system.

During our visit our members were treated to a close up view of the navy's latest multi-role MH-60R Seahawk "Romeo" which embarked on the FFH frigates. The Romeo capabilities include enhanced anti-submarine, anti-surface warfare and search and rescue capabilities. Embarkation of a helicopter also provides the ship with the capability to deliver air-launched missiles and torpedoes.

Warramunga has been an active unit since commissioning and in 2006 the vessel participated in its first deployment to the Persian Gulf, conducting over 150 boardings and security patrols during its 6 month tour of duty. In 2009 Warramunga was assigned to the anti-piracy patrols off Somalia and assisted in preventing pirate attacks on commercial vessels in the shipping lanes off the Horn of Africa and Somalia.

Warramunga was the fourth Anzac class to undergo the ASMD upgrade modernization which was completed in 2015. The upgrade included the fitting of the Australian CEAFAR and CEAMOUN phased array radars which involved the replacement of the original masts with a large array structure along with other improvements to improve operational capability. Warramunga was also the first ship of the RAN to be painted with the new polysiloxane based Haze Grey paint, which has greater durability and infrared-reflection capabilities than the storm grey colour polyurethane paint now progressively being phased out on RAN vessels.

In November 2017, Warramunga deployed to the Middle East as part of a combined Australian and Canadian task force and conducted patrol activities in the Arabian Sea until late May 2018, intercepting and boarding 13 vessels suspected of drug trafficking. A total of 28 tonnes of heroin and hashish were seized by Warramunga's crew during these operations.

This was Warramunga's first visit to Melbourne since 2012 and it is hoped that the current resurgence in naval visits to Melbourne will continue as it provides an excellent opportunity for the public and potential recruits to experience their naval ships at first hand.
